Sol. The paragraph begins by introducing Jane and her emotional state after failing her exam. The second sentence explains how Jane feels that her hard work has gone to waste, which leads to the third sentence where Jane realizes that she cannot allow this failure to define her. This realization leads her to take action, as explained in the fourth sentence, where Jane decides to use her failure as motivation to do better in the future. The paragraph ends with the fifth sentence, which shows the positive result of Jane's efforts as she slowly starts to regain her confidence. Each sentence is linked to the next by showing the progression of Jane's emotional state and how she responds to her failure. Thus, the correct rearrangement of the given sentences will be EBDAC.

Sol. The correct rearrangement of the given sentence would be "DEACB".

Let's provide the explanation for the correct sequence DEACB:

(D) Sarah had been training for months, waking up early every morning to go for a run before work.

This sentence establishes the context by introducing Sarah's training routine.

(E) She had slowly increased her mileage, pushing herself to go further each week.

This sentence follows the previous one, explaining how Sarah has been progressively increasing her running distance.

(A) However, she had been diligent about stretching and doing strength exercises to prevent injury.

This sentence provides additional information about Sarah's training approach, highlighting her commitment to injury prevention through stretching and strength exercises.

(C) She had also adjusted her diet, ensuring she was eating enough carbohydrates and protein.

This sentence introduces another aspect of Sarah's preparation, which is her dietary adjustments to support her training.

(B) As the marathon approached, she felt a mix of nerves and excitement, ready to put in all her hard work.

This sentence concludes the paragraph by mentioning Sarah's emotional state as the marathon approaches, emphasizing her readiness to apply her hard work during the race.

Therefore, the correct sequence is DEACB.
